No Propaganda Found in History Text Books

Report Approved by Superintendents, However, Criticizes Certain Views of Authors

The Board of Education's inquiry into the American history books used in the public schools was continuing yesterday, when the board of superintendents approved a report on the subject, made by Edgar D. Shinn, associate superintendent.

It is said in the report that no evidence was found that school books were being made the vehicles for propaganda, but that the views which were expressed sometimes were unsuitable for school children. School children, it was said, should not be instructed as to the weaknesses of national leaders.

Writers of some of the histories told the investigators that they approved of efforts to encourage cordial relations with Great Britain and wrote their text books from that viewpoint of a teacher. The use of "offensive illustrations and cartoons" is condemned.

The investigation was started in June, 1921, as the result of assertions that some of the public school text books were pro-British. An investigation by Dr. H. H. Hirschfeld, Commissioner of Accounts, was started more recently.

Plea Made for Industrial Art Museum in America

New York Artists Address Meeting at Newark Public Library

New York artists addressed a meeting at the Newark Public Library last night on the need of a museum for industrial and applied arts in America.

Dr. James Parton Hancy, director of art at the Newark Public Library, was the principal speaker. He illustrated his argument with references to the work of German craftsmen shown in the exhibition of the Deutscher Werkbund at the Newark Museum.

We need to take a leaf from Germany's book, he said, for she has gone further than any other country along this line, encouraging industrial art centers and establishing museums. His sentiments were expanded by John Sloan, president of the Society of Independent Artists; by Willy Pogany, illustrator; by T. H. Hamner, sculptor; John C. O'Brien, Dana, director of the Newark Museum; Chester R. Hoag, president, and Hugo B. Froehlich, William B. Gwinnell, president of the Newark Chamber of Commerce, presided.

Resolutions were adopted in favor of the plan by the vote of an audience representing the industrial and fine arts groups of Newark and vicinity.

J. M. Patterson Library Sold For $23,688

Highest Price of Auction Is $1,050 Paid for First Issue of "Robinson Crusoe"

618 Items in Collection

Rare Works Collected by Philadelphia Jurist Over Period of Twenty Years

The private library of John M. Patterson, presiding judge of the Court of Common Pleas, of Philadelphia, was sold here at auction at the Anderson Galleries yesterday for a total of $23,688. The collection numbered 618 items, including rare works collected by the jurist over a period of twenty years.

George A. Baker & Co., of this city, paid $1,050, the highest price of the sale, for a first edition of "Robinson Crusoe," printed in London in 1719.

Another first edition which brought a high figure was Goldsmith's "The Vicar of Wakefield," the genuine first issue in original calf, with case by Riviere, which was acquired by Gabriel Wells, the rare book dealer, for $700.

Abraham Lincoln's law book, "A Treatise on the Limitations of Actions at Law and in Equity and Admiralty," by J. K. Angell, was sold for $650, going to the same buyer. This work carried an insertion of a legal document in the autograph of Lincoln describing a law case, through which Lincoln had signed his name three times; a one-page indorsement and an autograph letter from Andrew Zane giving the history of the book.

An example of the earliest European type printing, the twenty-seventh leaf of "Donatus," printed by Gutenberg in 1448, was sold to Mr. Wells for $325. William Penn's Bible, with inscription and signature on the fly leaf by William Penn, which was sold with the effects of Pennsylvania Cattle, of Portland, Eng., in 1916, was knocked down to Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach for $575, while the intervening manuscript of Dr. Samuel Johnson, the door-knocker from his house in Fleet Street—went to the Brick Row Book Company for $100.

A feature of the sale was the extensive Dickens collection of first editions, association volumes, autograph letters and manuscripts, the most valuable of which proved to be the preface to a copy of "Oliver Twist," a first edition, specially bound, assigned to Sergeant Talford "with the best regards of Charles Dickens." This was obtained by Gabriel Wells for $575.

The afternoon session brought $10,846, while the evening session realized $12,842.25. Additional sales were: "Punch's Pocket Book for 1847," by Thackeray, to Gabriel Wells, $550; original manuscript of Shelley's poem, "Mighty Eagle," to Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, $500; Goldsmith's contract for the sale of "Annotated Nature," to Charles Scribner, $200; first issue of "Tale of Two Cities," to George A. Baker & Co., $300; the rare "trial" issue of "A Christmas Carol" to Dr. A. S. W. Rosenbach, $300.

Coolidge Sees Stability Near in U. S. Trade

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 15.—The commerce of America is gradually working towards a stable condition and a steady, unflinching return to prosperity on the firm basis of a lasting peace may be looked for, Vice-President Calvin Coolidge declared in an address at the semi-centennial celebration of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce here to-night.

While the Federal government cannot make prosperity, it can do much to create the proper conditions, he said, adding that this has been done through many activities of the present Administration.

"Our country is being gradually restored," said Mr. Coolidge, "by a strict adherence to those fundamental principles which are the foundation of economic prosperity."

DAYTON, Ohio, May 15.—The will of John H. Patterson, founder of the National Cash Register Company, filed for probate to-day, leaves an estate estimated at $6,800,000 to his two children, Frederick B. Patterson and Dorothy Patterson Judah, who are named joint executors.

According to the document the estate consists of 50,000 shares of common stock of the National Cash Register Company, the par value of which is $5,000,000; 12,500 shares of preferred stock of the same company at par value of $1,250,000; Liberty bonds valued at $200,000, and real estate valued at $300,000.

The greater part of Mr. Patterson's estate was given to the public during his life, relatives say.

Macbeth Paintings Are Virtually Unscathed

A few injured frames and cracked pieces of glass is the closest approach to damage suffered by paintings in the valuable collection of the Macbeth Galleries at 450 Fifth Avenue, which were the scene of a fire Sunday afternoon.

Robert W. Macbeth, manager of the gallery, said yesterday that it was by the greatest good fortune and the efficiency of the fire department that his private and loaned collections, valued at more than $500,000, were saved. The fire started in the storerooms of Alphen, Inc., a firm dealing in sporting goods on the second floor of the building. The galleries are on the third and fourth floors. The lower gallery housed at the time the permanent collection, and the paintings included Alexander Wyant's "Rocky Ledge Adirondack," valued at $25,000; "This and George Inness's "Summer Foliage," and others by Childre Hassam, Twachtman and Malcolm Parcell were unscathed. In fact, falling glass from a skylight did the only damage to the collection, the flames being kept in the floor below.

Although several art dealers came to the aid of Mr. Macbeth yesterday, offering to share the gallery space for his exhibitions, the latter was able to announce the continuation of the exhibition of Frieskeke, Lever and Parcell in the top floor gallery.

Jewish Orphan Given Up By Her Foster Mother

Alice Razon Duryea, twelve years old, orphan of Constantinople, subject of a habeas corpus proceeding brought by the Rev. Stephen S. Wise, who objected to the girl being in the custody of Mrs. Florence Spencer Duryea, of 20 Gramercy Park, now is in the care of Dr. and Mrs. Wise.

Dr. Wise, acting under authority granted him by the National Jewish Orphanage, of Constantinople, brought the proceeding to compel Mrs. Duryea to turn the child over to him because Alice was not being brought up in the Jewish faith. Dr. Wise said it was on the terms under which Mrs. Duryea adopted the girl in Turkey that her religion would not be changed. After hearings before Justice Coblenz and a conference in the office of Abraham L. Elkus, formerly American Ambassador to Turkey, it was agreed that Alice should be taken from the school she had been attending at Chappaqua, N. Y., and placed in the home of Dr. and Mrs. Wise. She will remain there for a month, while an effort is made to obtain new foster parents of her own faith.

Mrs. Duryea, in agreeing to this plan, reserved the right to give her approval of the future foster mother and father of her little ward before Alice is legally adopted.

Yonkers Warned to Resist Westchester Municipality Plan

Supervisor Cameron Asserts Wm. L. Ward Is Back of It; Asserts It Infringes on Village Self-Government

William D. Cameron, a member of the Westchester County Board of Supervisors from the 11th Ward in Yonkers, spoke in opposition to the plan for making Westchester County a municipality last night before the Men's Forum of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church, Yonkers.

It was a political scheme, he said, and would go in name, unless the voters were on the alert. He asserted that former Mayor William J. Wallin, of Yonkers, local spokesman for William L. Ward, county Republican boss, was a leader in the plan, although he had denied it.

Mayor Wallin told me a year ago, said Mr. Cameron, "that there was such a plan. Last year he made a speech to the residents of the 11th Ward, picturing the beauty of such a scheme."

The Republican City Committee of Yonkers recently labored on the protesting against the proposed city of Westchester. I must remind Mr. Wallin that the creation of the Westchester County Municipality Commission does not indicate the feeling of the city but the trend of this political group of which he is a member."

"Do not think you will have the final say about the creation of the city of Westchester," he continued. "The Legislature can do this without your consent. Do not believe that the city of Westchester is a political duplication of offices, demanded to know why such duplication was not reduced anyhow."

"I don't think Yonkers has any desire to rule Mount Vernon or Greenburgh. On the other hand, we won't submit Yonkers to the rule of New Rochelle or Port Chester. If you are inclined to prevent the creation of the city of Westchester you must do something."

Bluejackets at New London Had Funeral Clothes Made for Their Little Favorite

Miller, was buried yesterday in Greenwood Cemetery, Elizabeth, N. J. The boy, a general favorite with bluejackets at the naval base at New London, Conn., where his father is stationed, died on Friday from pneumonia after a brief illness. The sailors had a complete uniform made and four applied for leave to act as pallbearers. Conditions at the base prevented the commandant from granting the request.
